3:30-5:00 PM

Thomson Hall, room 317, UW Seattle Campus

How do famous authors such as Amos Oz, David Grossman and Yehuda Amichai understand and describe the Israeli soul and spirit? What are the themes that interest Israeli writers?

From his experience as the owner of Jerusalem's literary café, Tmol-Shilshom, David Ehrlich, writer and journalist, tells personal anecdotes about these great authors and others, all of whom he's hosted and befriended. He also discusses current issues in Israel through the lens of Israeli literature.
