2009-2010 Scholarships

▶ The UW Jewish Studies Program is currently inviting applications for scholarships for the 2009-2010 academic year. The four Scholarship opportunities in Jewish Studies ($3,000 each) are intended to encourage and recognize outstanding undergraduate and graduate students who include coursework or research in Jewish studies at the University of Washington as a significant part of their academic program. To be eligible, applicants must be currently enrolled at the University of Washington and are expected to pursue such work during the 2009-2010 academic year. Scholarship award recipients are asked to submit a brief report at the end of the academic year to the Jewish Studies Program and are strongly encouraged to attend the annual Awards and Recognition Reception in the spring.

Applications consist of the following:

- A 1-2 page statement of the student's academic plans
- An official transcript—sent directly from the registrar's office
- Two letters of recommendation from UW faculty
- A cover sheet with name, student number, phone number, postal and e-mail addresses

Candidates may be invited for a brief interview with the scholarship committee. Award decisions will be made by mid-April.

Submit application materials to:
