CENTRAL ASIA THROUGH THE EYES OF WESTERN TRAVELERS OF THE 19/20 CENTURY
The course "Central Asian Country Profiles 1: 20 YEARS OF INDEPENDENCE, KAZAKHSTAN & UZBEKISTAN", to be followed by a similar course in Spring 2013 focusing on Kyrgyzstan and Turkmenistan, will concentrate on significant developments in both republics since independence in 1991. Starting with an overview of the conditions both republics inherited from the Russian/Soviet colonial rule, the discussion will proceed to specific developments which shaped the national identity of Uzbeks and Kazakhs in a post-colonial setting. The course will look at the initial goals and aspirations as expressed in the national anthems, flags and constitutions and will discuss the different roads the two republics chose in reviving their traditions and values. In both republics, attention to their state languages, their history, literature, education, environment and other aspects of their culture, including Islam, constitute important areas of their efforts to regain their self-esteem. Throughout the course, Kazakh and Uzbek sources will be consulted in English translation, mostly provided by the instructor. Course requirements: One final paper. Its topic and a short abstract are due in the 6th week of classes. Regular class attendance is an absolute necessity. Offered: jointly with NEAR E 496 A-596 A.

SLN: 10278    ANTH 469 A    SPEC STUD: MEMORY & VIOLENCE (3)    M. PEREZ

MTh: 10:30-11:50    SAV 168

Memory & Violence
Violence has been a significant force in the creation of the modern world. Whether in the formation of colonial states in the Americas, the post-colonial nations of Asia and Africa, or post-war Europe, wide-scale violence and mass killings have left an indelible mark on the peoples and places of the world. Understanding how the victims and perpetrators of historical abuses and atrocities remember the past is paramount for determining the possibility of justice and a more peaceful future. This course will examine the relationship between violence and memory and its significance for community formation, historical meaning, and peace and reconciliation. How do people address, commemorate, and/or repress traumatic memories of mass violence and suffering? What is the relationship between violence and memory and how does it suggest the possibility of peace and justice? Looking at historical and contemporary cases of mass violence and the production and representation of collective memory, it will consider how communities and nations confront, interpret, and recover (and fail to recover) from past traumas.

SLN: 14850 AA (QZ) F: 9:30-10:20 BAG 108
This course is an introduction to the history of science from prehistory to the early seventeenth century, and to the means by which historians of science construct such narratives. It will begin with the idea of science as a culture's systematic worldview, dependent on a view of nature in context, by looking at cosmological ideas in prehistory. The course will then look at the creation of natural knowledge in Egypt, Mesopotamia, classical Greece and Rome, early Islam, medieval and renaissance Europe. We will look at questions of cause and effect related to astronomy, optics, mathematics, the sciences of motion, biology and medicine, and relate them to cultural contexts.

w/POL S 544 A (SLN: 18862)

Th: 1:30-4:20 SAV 162

This course will allow students to look at how politics and biology intersect. Specifically we will look at how political systems have been used to shape the contours of family, at how family strategies for survival affect politics, and at how choices about family formation can affect political discussions. We will look specifically at how nobles, commoners and the Church shaped medieval European family structures, the debates about teenage pregnancy in twentieth century America, and how the strategies of Egyptian families in the 1990s shaped policy preferences of elites in a period of economic restructuring.
