This seminar investigates the heroes, heretics, and radical pioneers of movements around the beginning of the Common Era (150 bce–150 ce). Jesus' and Paul's names are well-known today, but there were many other men and women who revolutionized the religious landscape in antiquity, some of whom are remembered as heroes, some as heretics, while some are almost entirely forgotten. Students are invited to investigate the ancient evidence for these heroes, heretics, and radicals in the Holy Land and beyond. While we learn about the life of people in Palestine at the beginning of the Common Era, we will employ the tools that scholars use to create history. Over the course of the semester, students are empowered to participate in the making of history by analyzing primary sources, engaging critically with secondary sources, and authoring their own historical narrative.

BEYOND COMPARISON: THE HISTORY OF EARLY JUDAISM AND CHRISTIANITY

In this advanced Jewish Studies seminar, we take an in-depth view of the classical period of Jewish history (fourth century BCE to sixth century CE) and the way scholars have reshaped it in recent decades. We examine the groundbreaking contributions that have shaped and changed the field of early Judaism and how the field has grown in conversation with the fields of biblical studies and early Christian studies (e.g. “the ways that never parted” in Jewish and Christian history). We also explore new frontiers of research that complicate religious boundaries such as magic, mysticism, and sacred song. Studying the approaches that have reshaped the field of ancient Judaism sheds light on the most important theories in the study of religion and ancient history in general: from anthropology to literary theory, feminism, etc. We will discuss not only the challenges of (and opportunities for) research, but also the challenges of teaching history and religion today. Open to senior undergraduates and graduate students.
