

BEHIND THE SCENES:

The President's First 100 Days

Tuesday, January 17, 2017 at 7 p.m.
in KANE HALL ROOM 220, University of Washington

Join us just days before the inauguration of America's 45th President to hear U.S. Congressman (Ret.) Jim McDermott give an insider's peek at what happens behind the scenes when a new Administration takes over the government.

Presented by The Henry M. Jackson School of International Studies at the University of Washington.

ABOUT THE SPEAKER

Jim McDermott retired in November 2016 after 14 terms representing the 7th Congressional District of Washington State. His government career spans 40 years, including a decade in the State Senate and a year in the Foreign Service stationed in Africa.

Starting in January 2017, he will teach a course on President-elect Donald Trump's first 100 days in office to graduate students at the Henry M. Jackson School of International Studies at the University of Washington.

Rep. McDermott received a M.D. from the University of Illinois College of Medicine.
