“Activism, social movements, and collaboration in the time of the Anthropocene and climate change”

This reading and discussion seminar will explore activism and sustained and difficult negotiations between Native and non-Native people over their radically different interests and concerns. It will explore the means toward collaboration in the time of climate change and the Anthropocene.

New Approaches to Israel and Palestine

Recent developments in the United States and the Middle East have complicated hopes for a two-state solution to the conflict between Israelis and Palestinians. This seminar will look at recent scholarship from a variety of disciplines that illuminates the current situation based on new approaches to understanding the conflict's past and exploring future options.

Capitalism

What do we mean when we talk about capital and capitalism? How did our world become “capitalist,” and what kind of capitalist system continues to organize our present? In this undergraduate seminar, we will read a range of texts—political and economic theory, ethnography, literary fiction, history—that consider these questions. In particular, we will pay attention to the historical and contemporary interconnections between the formation of capitalism and other social and political processes, structures, and ideas.

>16705 E 5 T 1030-1220 THO 217 Basic,Denis

Jihad & Crusades from the Middle Ages until the Modern Era

We will be exploring the phenomenon of “Holy War,” primarily in Islamic and Christian (later to be Western) civilizations, but also in Judaism. We shall be examining historical roots of religious conflicts, as well as their implications for today's world. We shall be reading original sources - Jewish, Christian, and Muslim ones - in English translation, besides studying commentaries by prominent scholars in the fields of history, history of religion, and Near and Middle Eastern Studies.

Four deeply divided societies will be studied: The United States, the former Yugoslavia, Afghanistan, and Vietnam. In the last three there have been major civil wars as well as much foreign intervention, much but not all of it by Americans. In the United States there is no civil war, but could there be one? We will see if any lessons can be drawn about what makes divisions worse, and what can moderate them.
