

Race, Health & Justice - Benjamin Rabinowitz Symposium in Medical Ethics

Friday, Oct 11 2019: HUB 250, University of Washington, Main Campus

Sponsors: The Benjamin Rabinowitz Endowment in Medical Ethics; the Department of Philosophy; the Program on Ethics; and the School of Public Health.

8.30am	Registration and coffee
9.00-9.10am	Welcome
9.15-10.45am	Keynote speaker: Chandra Ford, UCLA	Title TBA
10.45-11.00am	Coffee break
11.00-12.30pm	Panel 1: Migrant and Latinx Health Inequities
	India Ornelas, Public Health	Understanding the Role of Migration in Shaping the Health of Latinos
	Jane Lee, Social Work	Intersectional Stigma as Barriers to Health among Latinx Immigrants: Implications of Immigrant Status for HIV/AIDS Prevention
	Julio Covarrubias, Philosophy	"Si No Te Quieres Fregar..." or: How the Everyday Violence of Racial Capitalism Conspires to Break the Latinx Worker Body
12.30-1.45pm	Lunch (own arrangements)
1.45-3.15pm	Panel 2: Racial, Gender and Class Inequities
	Karin Martin, Public Policy	The Consequences of Criminal Justice Debt for Health and Beyond
	Erika Blacksher, Bioethics and Humanities	White Deaths of Despair: The Potential Roles of Whiteness and Racism
	Bettina Judd, Gender, Women and Sexuality Studies	"Questions that Lean Toward the Body, Trip": Black Women's Healthcare and the Ghosts in the Clinic
3.15-3.30 pm	Coffee break
3.30-5.00pm	Keynote Speaker & Philosophy Colloquium: Dorothy Roberts, University of Pennsylvania	Mistreating Health Inequities in the Genomic Age
5.00-6.00pm	Reception

Organizers: Carina Fourie (Program on Ethics, Philosophy) and Anjum Hajat (Epidemiology, School of Public Health), in conjunction with THINK (The Health and Inequality Network).