

The Jackson School of International Studies is a nationally recognized leader in advancing the understanding of and engagement in world issues. Founded in 1909, it is one of the oldest and largest schools in the country to offer undergraduate and graduate degrees in international and area studies. Its location in Seattle, a global hub of commerce, philanthropy and progressive policy, provides a diverse and dynamic environment that helps connect scholarship with what the world needs. For over 40 years the School has hosted the highest number of federally funded national resource centers in area studies in the U.S.

JSIS currently offers seven undergraduate majors, 13 minors, nine interdisciplinary MA degrees, a PhD, a sequences MA-PhD, and is the home of eight Department of Education Title VI National Resource Centers. JSIS is a department in the Social Sciences Division of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Table of Contents

- 1.1 Jackson School Contact List
- 1.2 Getting to Campus
- 1.3 UW Net ID/Email, Husky Card and Directory Listing
- 1.4 New Employee Documents and Trainings
- 1.5 Distribution Lists
- 1.6 Departmental Administrative Roles and Responsibilities
- 1.7 Recurring Meetings and Social Gatherings
- 1.8 Business Cards
- 1.9 Printing and Copying
- 1.10 Mailing
- 1.11 Websites