The City of Khayyam: Observations from Neishabour-Iran

Haideh Salehi-Esfahani

Principal Lecturer, UW Economics

Thursday, November 10

3:30 - 5:00 pm

Denny Hall - Room 211

In this presentation Dr. Salehi-Esfahani will share her observations about the society, sites, institutions, and changes in various aspects of life in the city of Neishabour (aka Nishapur) where she grew up. She visits this town regularly and will share pictures she has taken from various venues, sites, and events.

Haideh Salehi-Esfahani is the co-director of the undergraduate program in economics and a principal lecturer at the Department of Economics. She has been teaching economics at UW since 1990. Originally from Iran, Haideh received her B.Sc. in mathematical economics and econometrics from the London School of Economics in 1979 and her PhD from the University of Pennsylvania in 1985. She has taught at the University of Utah during 1985-1990. Her areas of specialization and interest include international trade and economic development, and institutional development and emergence of rule of law.
