

Syrian Refugees in Jordan

Privatization, Governance, and Resilience

Friday, April 14, 2017
12:30 – 1:20 p.m.

Thomson Hall, Rm. 317
University of Washington-Seattle
Free and open to the public

“Resilience” has become a key term in refugee management often invoked by the UN, NGOs, and governments alike. Through the case of Syrian refugees in Jordan, this presentation will examine the ways that market-forward strategies of privatization elide with aims of refugee resilience. This has resulted in new understandings of “good governance” by the Jordanian state, with important implications for refugee management into the future.

Sarah A. Tobin

Associate Director, Middle East Studies, Brown University, is an economic anthropologist with expertise in Islam and gender in the Middle East.

Sponsored by the Middle East Center, Henry M. Jackson School of International Studies, University of Washington. Contact: mecuw@uw.edu

The Middle East Center's sponsorship of this event does not imply that the Center endorses the content of the event. To request disability accommodation contact the Disability Services Office at least ten days in advance at: (206) 543-6450/V, (206) 543-6452/TTY, (206) 685-7264 (FAX), or dso@u.washington.edu.

MIDDLE EAST CENTER

UNIVERSITY of WASHINGTON

The Henry M. Jackson School of International Studies