

Jews, Christians and Muslims in Europe: Modern Challenges

An Online Course

- In what way do the recent events in Europe – refugee crisis, resurgence of the far right, Brexit – threaten religious pluralism and how can this challenge be addressed?
- How has the history of Jewish-Christian-Muslim relations impacted on contemporary European culture? What does this teach us?
- What is the relationship between religious freedom and freedom of expression in Europe today?

In addition to the historical topics, such as interreligious relations in medieval Spain, Enlightenment Britain, and 20th Century Germany, participants will engage with contemporary topics such as the Muhammad cartoons controversy in Denmark; the social reality of Syrian refugees in Sweden; the relation of religion, ethnicity and citizenship in Bosnia and Herzegovina; and the recent rise of Antisemitism, Islamophobia and Islamist extremism in Europe.

The application deadline is 3 August 2017.

The course commences on 4 September 2017.

For further information:

<http://www.woolf.cam.ac.uk/study/e-learning/jcme.asp>

Contact: Dr Emma Harris

eth22@cam.ac.uk

www.woolf.cam.ac.uk

